Lebanon Paper Tells of Clever
Scheme by Which 35 Barrels
Are Secured

The Lebanon Falcon tells of another big liquor robbery in Marion county this week, in which 35 barrels are believed to be missing. The Lebanon paper says:

One of the boldest frauds ever attempted in the history of prohibition in this state is believed to have been perpetrated upon federal enforcement officers by one C. L. Lynn, of Loretto, this county, during the past few weeks. It appears that Lynn has removed from a so-called "free" warehouse at Loretto something like 35 barrels of whisky, the present whereabouts of which is unknown, and so cleverly has he maneuvered that federal officers have not as yet gotten at the bottom of the mystery.

Lynn with his wife came to this county about six weeks ago, stating that his permanent residence was in Louisville. They produced a permit from the state prohibition officer, believed to be genuine, giving him the right to purchase and to free the bonded whisky and to place it in bottles for medicinal use. The permit was presented to R. Cummins & Company, the Loretto distillers, and since all regulations for freeing the whisky from bond and bottling it for medicinal use had been complied with, the transfer of the whisky was made and the liquor placed in a small warehouse rented by Lynn of the American Wrecking and Salvage Company, which purchased from the former owners sometime ago all warehouse and distilling property, subject to storage reservations. The whisky having been placed in this warehouse, the doors were locked, and Lynn carried the key, the property all the time being under the care of the regular guards who looked after the bonded warehouse property. Not long after the preliminaries had been arranged, Lynn constructed a garage at the side of the warehouse, to take care of his numerous cars, and in building the garage one of the walls of the warehouse was used as a wall of the garage. This building was also kept under lock, and Lynn kept at least one truck besides a big Cadillac touring car and a Ford sedan. The truck was a closed car. Upon one pretext or another, he would leave in the truck quite frequently, especially during the past few days, and after having been gone but a short time, would return in a truck again, and the supposition has been, since the investigation of his mysterious actions have been under way, that a truck of similar construction was met upon these occasions a few miles out of Loretto and that the drivers simply changed seats, Lynn returning with the empty car, and the further assumption is that a hole was cut through the wall from the warehouse to the garage through which the transfer of the liquor could easily be made and the whisky carried away in the truck on these frequent trips.

Storekeeper Guager Reuben Brown stated that he had looked into the truck so many times to investigate what was being carried, that it had become embarrassing, and that towards the last he had paid no attention to what the truck contained. It is believed by officials connected with the case that not a drop of the liquor remains in the warehouse.

Warehousemen, storekeeper guagers and guards at Loretto have suspected that all was not as it should be at the warehouse, especially pieces of tin sheeting had been nailed across the windows on the inside, thus hiding from view everything that took place on the interior. It was not until Thursday, however, that those in charge of the government property at Loretto believed that Lynn's actions justified them in notifying the prohibition enforcement officers. Lynn had left that afternoon on the last of his mysterious trips in the truck, having left word that a friend had called for him to come pull this car out of the mud. After his return, Lynn seemed very anxious to get away, but fate seemed against him as his big Cadillac became stuck in the mud when trying to drive through the yard at Len Thompson's, with whom he and his wife had been boarding. Lynn left at once in the Ford sedan, returning at nightfall, and it was during his absence that Mr. Thompson notified U. S. Commissioner C. C. Boldrick of this city, and requested that he come to Loretto. Commissioner Boldrick went down on the afternoon train and had Storekeeper Guager Brown demand the keys from Lynn when the latter returned about six o'clock. Lynn stated that he would go and get the keys and started in the direction of the home he had been occupying since coming to Loretto. Lynn did not return and that is the last that has been seen of him in this part of the country.

Federal officers at Louisville were notified and prohibition enforcement officer at Loretto is working on the case. The warehouse will be broken into by the officers to see if any of the whisky stored "for medicinal use" remains.

On Saturday two men who were strangers came to Loretto for the Cadillac car that had been left, but they were not allowed to remove the car. Two other men came for the machine Monday, and when one of them displayed the badge of U. S. Marshal under his coat, they were allowed to drive away in the machine. It is not believed that either of the men was a federal officer, but that they carried the badge in order to accomplish their purpose of removing the car.

Lynn and his wife were generally well dressed, and the latter, it is said, was in the habit of flourishing a diamond of rather large proportions. In the "free" warehouse they should be 387 cases of whisky, all of which is believed to have been removed. The value of the liquor at bootleggers' prices of $10 a quart would be approximately $45,000.

GUN BATTLE WITH 'SHINERS IN MARION

(By Associated Press)
Louisville, Feb. 17.—In a thrilling gun battle with moonshiners near Maunton church in Marion county, prohibition officers from Louisville late yesterday captured the largest still in the history of raids from the local office. It was of 100 gallon capacity, with 150 gallons of singlings, were destroyed. The still was located sometime ago by Prohibition Enforcement Officer McFarland. He with Sheriff Tapp and two others left Springfield yesterday for the scene. Near the still the moonshiners opened fire. The officers returned it, routed the moonshiners and captured their lookout who later escaped.

Many Millions To Be Returned To Liquor Men

Washington, Feb. 17.—Anywhere from $1,000,000,000 to $4,000,000,000 may have to be returned to distillers, liquor dealers and former saloon keepers under recent rulings of the Treasury Department. This information was imparted to the Senate today by Senators Reed Smoot, Utah, and Joseph S. Frelinghuysen, of New Jersey.

Mr. Smoot estimated the probable total of such repayments at $1,000,000,000, while Mr. Frelinghuysen said that, according to estimates furnished him, the amount will certainly be $2,000,000,000 and may even reach the huge sum of $4,000,000,000.

Mr. Frelinghuysen explained that the money is to be returned to persons now or formerly engaged in the liquor business for "obsolescence of property," of those whose businesses were ended with the enactment of prohibition legislation.

CONVICT'S FATHER HELPED IN ESCAPE

Frankfort, Ky., Feb. 17.—Jacob Hicks, of Cynthiana, father of Heber Hicks, one of the three captured fugitives of Frankfort prison, tonight was charged with aiding the three convicts in making their escape early Sunday night. Warden Moyer, it is said, obtained confessions from both Chester Phelps and Ray Blackburn. A warrant has been sworn out for the elder Hicks, but his arrest had not been effected at a late hour.

H. C. Brown, a taxicab driver of Lexington, and J. H. Brown, his father, who were arrested Tuesday charged with assisting in the escape of the convicts, are believed to be innocent.

Where the saws, with which the men sawed the bars of the prison, came from is still a mystery.

Warden Moyer ordered the reinstatement of all suspended guards with the exception of Daniel Powell. Powell, it is expected, will be reinstated within a few days. The guards, who have been completely exonerated, are: Mains Woods, B. D. Tracey. The confession as reported from the prison last night, is that the elder Hicks came to Frankfort from Cynthiana Sunday and there hired a taxicab.

After sawing themselves to freedom the men bundled into an automobile but the motor stalled the men set out on foot and walked 14 miles to Versailles. Here they remained hidden until Tuesday morning, when the elder Hicks met them and took them to Lexington where he furnished the men with clothes and money. Later the men were caught in Lexington at the residence of J. H. Brown.

Blackburn last night told Warden Moyer that his "Chicago friend" was the elder Hicks.

COMET MAY HIT EARTH IN JUNE

A large and brilliant comet, known as the Pons-Winnecke, is sweeping through the heavens headed directly for the earth, according to observations recently made by leading astronomers in this country and England.

Whether a collision will occur is not yet certain. In any event, the scientists agree, so far as the earth as a whole is concerned the effect will be negligible, as the comet is so much smaller than the earth.

Dr. A. C. D. Cromelin, of the Royal Observatory, Greenwich, England, estimates that the comet will pass through the earth's orbit June 24. Whether the earth will occupy that particular spot in its orbit at that time remains to be seen.

On that date, however, at least a part of the world will witness an exhibition of celestial fireworks unparalleled for several years, as Pons-Winnecke is described as having a "fiery tail" of unusual splendor.

The last exhibiting of the sort was witnessed in 1912, when Halley's comet approached the earth.

CARUSO VERY LOW

(By Associated Press)

New York, Feb. 17.—The condition of Enrico Caruso, world famous grand opera singer, continues "unsatisfactory and critical," according to a statement of his attending physician early today. "We can hold no hope one way or the other," it said. Word reached newspapermen that the singer rallied from a second relapse this morning but is again very weak.

INCOME TAXPAYERS MAY SAVE MONEY

(By Associated Press)

Louisville, Feb. 17.—It is entirely possible that the taxpayers may save money by filing their income tax returns early, declared an official of the internal revenue department today in discussing the payment of income taxes. During the time for filing returns, from January 1 to March 15, a number of deputies are stationed at the various offices and travel from place to place to aid in filing returns. Before March 1, there usually is not a very great demand for their services. He explained, consequently the deputies can explain the matter of exemptions with the possibility that certain exemptions may not be discovered if the deputy had to hurry through to aid a long list of persons waiting to consult him.

In Kentucky there are approximately 56 men doing nothing at this time but aiding taxpayers in filing their returns. "They are with the division offices at Louisville, Lexington, Danville, Maysville, Frankfort, Paducah and Owensboro and either are at these offices at all times or visiting outlying sections at specified times, thereby taking the collector to the door of the rural resident instead of requiring him to go to the collector," said the official.

TWO OHIO TEACHERS BEATEN TO DEATH

(By Associated Press)

Cleveland, Ohio, Feb. 17.—Miss Louise Wolf and Miss Mabel Foote, school teachers at the Parma high school, were found beaten to death in Parma Heights, near here, today. A bloody club was found near the bodies. No houses are in the immediate vicinity and no clues for help were heard. A posse of farmers is scouring the neighborhood in search of two roughly dressed men seen hurrying along the road last evening. The women's rings were not taken, although a suitcase they carried was ripped open.

BURKE BOY'S EYES HAD CLOSE CALL

W. O. Burke is back on the petit jury, as the burns received by his little 11-year-old son, Lucien, did not become as serious as at first anticipated. The little fellow was not powder burned as was first reported, but received his injuries at his school at Kirksville. He was sitting at his desk when another had punched the fire with a poker. The blaze shot out the door, and struck Lucien in the face, burning off his eyebrows, eyelids, and severely scorching his entire face. That his eyes were not seriously injured was almost a miracle. He is doing nicely now, however, and will soon be O. K. again.

IMPROVING NORMAL DIAMOND FOR PLAY

The baseball diamond on the Normal campus is being improved. R. F. Ramsey, supt. of the Buildings and Grounds, has a large force of laborers hauling clay taken from the excavation made when the dormitory construction work began. It is his plan to build up the infield. For several seasons the baseball diamond has been scraped early in the spring with the result that the infield was from six to eight inches lower than the surrounding territory. When completed, the diamond will be so elevated that games can be played shortly after a heavy rain.

Base ball gloves have been in evidence on the campus every day this week. Now, that the enrollment of men is getting back to normal, athletic teams of the Normal will be more representative of the school. Prospects for base ball are exceptionally bright. Combs, Fox, Gray, Kire, White, Dunaway, Mainous, Coleman, Bonrue, are enrolled this term and have represented the school on base ball teams in the past. A great number of new men have informed Coach Hembree that they will be out for practice. Word has been received from Captain Callahan, of last year's team, that he will return this spring. The athletic committee will schedule games with schools in this section of the state.

$300,000 MAIL LOOT OF TOLEDO BANDITS

Five Men Rob Mail Truck Right
At Main Postoffice and Get Away With 11 Sacks

(By Associated Press)

Toledo, Ohio, Feb. 17.—Five bandits early today held up a mail truck at the main postoffice and escaped in an automobile with 11 sacks of mail, unofficially reported to contain between $300,000 and $400,000 in Federal Reserve bank notes. Pending a check of the mail, postal officials refused to comment on the value of the stolen mail sacks, six of which were registered. Aside from the abandoned automobile the police up to noon had found no trace of the bandits.

The mail had just arrived in the truck at the loading platform when the bandits drove up. Two covered the three men in charge of the mail, while the others seized the mail, threw it into their machine and sped away.

FORDNEY WANTS ANOTHER TARIFF

(By Associated Press)

Washington, Feb. 17.—Chairman Fordney, of the House Ways and Means Committee, left today for St. Augustine, Fla., to seek the approval of President-elect Harding to a plan to put the extra session of the new congress this spring a second emergency tariff to provide protection for all products of American industry. Fordney's measure will be designed as a stopgap until a scientific tariff law is framed in the light of after-war conditions in various countries.

"PIZEN" GRAND JURY STILL ON THE JOB

Another Big Bunch of Indictments Brought In With Gaming Again Chief Offense

That "pizen" grand jury, as many of the "boys about town" are calling it, brought in about 40 more indictments to Circuit Court Wednesday, and is still at work. As before, the grand jury is devoting itself especially to gambling, and in the batch returned already this week, 21 are for gambling. Quite a number of these are against Berea men. The great "indoor sport" of poker seems to be just about as popular up in the Berea section as it has been around Richmond—has been, is eminently correct in both instances.

The list of new indictments brought in included the following:

- Unlawful sale of liquor, 3.
- Grand larceny, 4.
- Suffering gaming, 3.
- Burning church house, 1—the Second Presbyterian church in Richmond.
- Horse burning, 1—the Soper's mill fire.
- Nuisance, 1.
- Gaming, 21.
- Shooting on public highway, 2.
- Carrying concealed deadly weapon, 2.
- Having liquor for sale, 2.
- Assault and battery, 1.

Some of the indictments for shooting on the public highway, was against Dallas Kirby, to which he pled guilty in court Thursday morning, and was fined $50 and given 30 days in jail. Other charge against him were set for hearing March 1st.

UTILITIES OFFICIALS SEE LOCAL PLANT

After their banquet at Winchester, a number of the high officials of the Kentucky Utilities Company motored to Richmond late Wednesday. They were headed by L. B. Herrington, vice president of the company, and formerly a prominent lawyer here. Several hours were spent inspecting the local plant and the officials appeared greatly pleased with its condition. They had dinner with Manager George Fawkes at the Glyndon later. The visitors were in addition to Mr. Herrington, G. T. Bogard, A. A. Tuttle, Jas. Harmon, Mrs. James Harmon, Mrs. C. B. Tate, Jr., C. C. Dicken, and Mr. Cruise. They motored from here back to Louisville, their headquarters.

DR. AINSLIE PLEADS FOR MISSIONS AT HOME

Wednesday afternoon Dr. Ainslie threw the searchlight on the negro question, and at the same time made a powerful appeal for mission work in this country. People are very pious in making an offering for the saving of Africa, he said, but forget that God had brought Africa to our own land, even to our homes.

Dr. Ainslie pleads for an even chance for all men, for God hath made of one blood all nations of men. No man or nation can rise if they hold another down. Be hearted, broadminded, a Christian. Dr. Ainslie lives the Golden Rule; being a follower of the Master, he believes in carrying on His work of saving the world.

Another large, interested audience greeted Dr. Ainslie in the evening. He says, "The common belief is in an absentee God." Few realize that God is always at hand. "A Christian practices the presence of God; a pagan thinks he alone."

"All Richmond knows of God is what it sees in the lives of its men and women," says Dr. Ainslie. "That statement likely explains the recent crime wave, and the present reign of law breaking. God is lacking in the lives of the people. Hearing Dr. Ainslie, and thinking with him, the public will be roused to its responsibility and Richmond will never be the same town again."

Efficiency at the Penitentiaries

This "non-partisan, bi-partisan" control of the penitentiaries that Gov. Morrow planned and inaugurated may work well in theory, but it hardly seems to be proving practical, if what the papers are saying about escapes and other escapades of the convicts at Frankfort is the truth, and there has been no denial of any of them. First was the disclosure of the manner in which convicts were permitted to roam at large from the road-making camp up in Harlan county. That one of them killed Miss Lura Parsons few now seek to dispute.

Then two or three of them up there escaped. Then Wendling, the fiend, who murdered little Alma Kellner and hid her body in a church in Louisville, was caught returning over the walls one night after a date with a lady friend outside. And now, this week, three prominent young murderers were calmly let out of their cells by the guard and then casually saved a few bars off a window and were in a fair way to make their escape altogether when caught by Deputy Sheriffs near Lexington.

Warden Byers, who was imported from up north somewhere by the new administration to humanize the penitentiaries, feebly explains that much of the cause for the various troubles is due to what he says has been "wholesale discharge of experienced personnel and the employment of an entirely inexperienced force throughout." In other words, Byers and his "non-partisan board" kicked out experienced democratic guards and officials to give jobs to good republicans who, he admits are "entirely inexperienced."

And yet the press and the public were repeatedly told that the prisons were not to be the football of politics, but were to be operated under this super-system, along lines of efficiency, economy and principles of humanity. Perhaps they are, but just what the people of Kentucky are thinking of the "efficiency" of a system that turns out experienced men and replaces them with a force "entirely inexperienced," while murderers from the cell-house roam about the streets at night and unprotected girls are assassinated by prowling road convicts, would not look well in print or get by Uncle Sam's postal regulations just at present.

 Tobacco, or no tobacco, that is the question.

There, little tobacco plant, don't cry; you'll be fertilizer by and by. While Harding was making his cabinet in the south, Mrs. Harding was making her wardrobe in the north.

A man who sold his tobacco on the local market at $2 per hundred blamed the low price on his wife for the careless way she cut, housed and stripped the weed, says the Elmwood Outlook.

The Mardi Gras celebration at New Orleans lacked much of its former splendor. The Rex parade was the only one. Alas, poor Comus! We knew him well, but when John Barleycorn died poor Comus fell.

"How to Hold a Husband" is being discussed in the women's magazines. Don't know much about that unless a bear trap is used; but if they want to know "How to Hold a Girl" all they have to do is to send her to this office for a free demonstration.

The newspapers are commenting on the fact that Chicago has a holdup woman who insists upon kissing her victims. But, somehow or other, this practice does not seem new. We have heard somewhere that a kiss from your wife indicates an early hold-up.

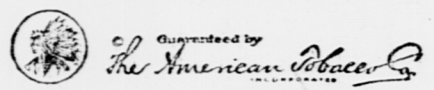

Down in Alabama where the cotton blossoms grow, exists a tender affection between a gander and a blind ox, impelling the gander to lead the ox carefully back to the grazing pasture. Lovely friendship. Almost as touching as the affection of a Kentucky goose for a blind tiger.

OLD-TIME GOVERNORS HAD THEIR TROUBLES

Pleas For Pardon For Offenses
Just As Strong and Hard To Resist As Now

(By Associated Press)

Frankfort, Ky., Feb. 17.—Trial and tribulations of modern day governors are nothing new, judging from letters and other documents in the files of executive papers of early governors of the state. Pleas for pardons in that day were as forceful and as importunate as today, the files show.

Within two months after he took office on June 4, 1792, Gov. Isaac Shelby was faced with petitions for the pardon of one "Jno. Smith, late of North Carolina," who was convicted in Lexington of horse stealing and sentenced to death. Smith, according to letters from Judge Samuel W. McDowell, of the district court at Lexington, Judge John Allen and John Coburn, "did become greatly alarmed when he heard the sentence," and, in the parlance of the modern day crook, "snatched." He told who his accomplices were and although their names are not mentioned in any of the letters, the writers all state that it is evident that Smith was led into the crime by evil associates and that he had had a good reputation previously and would reform if pardoned.

The date set for hanging Smith, who was confined in the Lexington jail, was set for September 1, 1792, but on August 24 Governor Shelby pardoned him. All of the correspondence in the case is clearly legible although the paper is yellowed with age and marks of the red wax with which the letters were sealed are still plain.

The second case, which bears earmarks of a modern pardon appeal is that of William Cox, also known as "Devil" Cox and "Devil Will" Cox. Cox was tried on a charge of "making hard and paper money," otherwise known as counterfeiting in that he attempted to pass ten counterfeit Spanish milled dollars on a merchant in Danville. He was pardoned June 10, 1794, but not before a score or more of petitions and letters had reached the governor.

The case of Cox evidently stirred the bluegrass region thoroughly, for hundreds of names of men, some of them known in history, were signed to the petitions asking executive clemency. Letter after letter importuned Governor Shelby to pardon Cox and in every one great stress was laid on the fact that he had a wife and six children "who were greatly grieved" and that a pardon would be followed no doubt by reformation. Mrs. Sally Cox, the wife, apparently was very active, for in every instance the petitions and letters spoke of her as asking the pardon, before the name of her husband was mentioned.

Cox, however, either did not reform or else some of his old crimes came up to face him, for in the same file dated three months later is a beautifully written copy of a warrant for Cox and a requisition on the governor of Kentucky for his return to Knoxville, Tenn., on the charge of counterfeiting. This was a United States indictment and was signed by William B. Blount, governor of the Southern Territory of the United States.

Penalties in the early days of the commonwealth were extreme and there was no means between the sentence inflicted and a pardon. The case of Basil, a negro belonging to Samuel Woidle of Bourbon county, wherein the negro was sentenced to death for stealing $75 from the home of one James Thomas, is related in the files of Governor Shelby. Basil was valued by the district court at Lexington at 75 English pounds and officials of the court, although agreeing that the negro was guilty, recommended that he be pardoned inasmuch as $65 of the stolen money had been recovered. The conviction was obtained June 30, 1792, and the day of his death set for July 30, but on July 25 Governor Shelby signed the pardon.

More farmers are wearing Goodrich Rubber Footwear today than ever before.

The reason for this tremendous increase in users is simple—Goodrich wears longer than other footwear, and farmers have found it out. Naturally, when a man buys a pair of Goodrich "Hi-Press" and they last so much longer and are so much more comfortable, and so materially cut down that big footwear bill—he's going to tell his friends.

More and more farmers are finding out that Goodrich won't leak, peel or come apart—it can't, for it is made in One Solid Piece—that's the Goodrich way.

Look for the Red Line round the Top when you buy. 60,000 dealers are now selling Goodrich.

LYNCH IS NOW A MODEL MINING TOWN

(By Associated Press)
Lynch, Ky., Feb. 16—This city is less than four years old and has a population of approximately 7,000 persons, concrete streets and roads, a department store that compares favorably with those of much larger cities, a $300,000 hotel, a $1,000,000 bank, the largest coal tippie in the world, an 85-bed hospital and a church of every denomination represented in Eastern Kentucky. In the opinion of R. B. Clayton, secretary of the Harlan County Coal Operators' Association, it will be the model mining camp of the country within two more years.

Sitting at the head of the valley of the Poor Fork of the Cumberland river, 40 miles above the point where it joins the Clover Fork at Harlan to form the main stream, the town is the base of what is said will be the largest coal operation in the Cumberland mountains when it is completed. Model cottages for miners and officials are being erected as rapidly as possible. These homes have every modern convenience and are rented at the rate of $2 per room for houses which are not heated from the central power plant and at a figure based on the rate of $2 per room plus the cost of radiation for homes heated with steam.

The only general store in the community rivals in its appointments and stock any department store in the largest cities of the country.

A $300,000 hotel has been erected on the highest point in the valley. It is equipped throughout with all modern conveniences.

Concrete roads and streets are being built as rapidly as possible the roads leading to the various points where the veins of coal in the mountain are expected to be opened.

PAYS HIGH TRIBUTE TO BEREA COLLEGE

Gifted Young Writer of Louisville Tells of Its Great Work For Mountain Youth

Miss Ida Cozart, of Louisville, who made many friends here during her stay in Richmond in charge of Children's Home Society, made a visit to Berea College, and wrote interestingly of it and its work in a letter to the Stanford Interior Journal. What she says of it will be of much interest in Madison, of course. She wrote as follows:

The aim of the founders of Berea College, over half a century ago, was "To promote the cause of Christ." In doing so they wanted especially to reach the boys and girls of the Southern Appalachians, who were greatly in need—the struggling boys and girls eager to grasp opportunities for rising in the world. With such an aim the college could not fail, so we may well understand why Berea has grown and flourished through the changing years since its organization.

It seems that the school has at no time lost sight of its high purpose, if we may judge from the boys and girls who have gone out from there. Berea's task today, as set forth by its new president, Dr. William J. Hutchins, is this: "Within the bounds of our enlarging equipment to put within the reach of each of those mountain boys and girls who need it most, the opportunity of finding and forming friendships with the host that is in the world; the opportunity of finding one's self in one's work; the opportunity of binding one's self in friendship and in toil to the friendly power of the world, emphasizing the desire of the leaders of Berea College to offer to each student the chance to bind himself consciously in friendship and in the toil to the 'friendly power behind the world.'"

He speaks further of the task as being one of giving each student who comes the opportunity of forming ennobling friendships with "the best that is in the world of nature," so that the stars and the trees, the birds and mountains may each unfold to him something of its friendly meaning. "The college wants to make each student more efficient in his chosen life work, whether it is raising chickens, cows or corn; whether it be typewriting, teaching or some other profession; and as he becomes master of his chosen work, to find himself in it—to realize the joy of self-expression—and to relate his task to the world enterprise."

The student body today numbers nearly 2,000. Boys and girls are taken from the mountainous sections of seven Appalachian states. The school is so crowded that the management is careful to admit only boys and girls who truly "thirst for knowledge," and have the opportunity to enter no school other than Berea. As a result, the college is composed of purposeful, earnest, enthusiastic workers. The whole atmosphere is pervaded by a spirit of joy in working toward a higher,
